

Lucas Ilzarbe was the first person that came to my mind this morning when hearing the announcements. This is a student that has consistently exemplified what it means to be kind, compassionate, and caring towards other people throughout the years that he has been at Glover School. – Ms. Martin

The most empathetic and compassionate person in our class is Zoé Rodriguez. She works with everyone and is always excited to invite someone new to join in. She feels deeply for others whether their frustrated, disappointed or just not themselves, she notices and quietly checks in with them. Her kindness and empathy stand out on a daily basis. – Mme. Cardiasmenos

I nominate Nick DeBarros for being a compassionate friend because he makes all peers feel included. – Ms. Lennon

We nominate Molly Sutphin. She embodies compassion and empathy. Molly is a gentle compassionate person who innately treats others with kindness and respect. – Ms. Morris, Ms. Donohue, and Ms. Pender

Lexi is frequently caught checking in on kids sitting on the Buddy Bench at recess, making sure everyone has someone to play with. She is the first to volunteer to invite anyone to join in with whatever activity she's doing. Lexi has endless patience and exhibits compassion and care for all. She consistently impresses us with her kind and open heart. We adore her and she's extremely deserving of this recognition! We couldn't keep this to one sentence, but in a nutshell, "Lexi truly is the definition of what it means to be kind to the core." – Ms. Craven, Ms. Vanacore, and Ms. Gardiner

When you described Inclusion Man immediately Elle Ryan comes to mind. She is the most genuinely kind an inclusive student. She includes others and helps others even when no one is looking. She goes out of her way to make sure everyone in our class feels like her friend. – Ms. Collins, Ms. Franklin, and Ms. Bennett

Patrick O'Leary embodies everything that an "inclusion man" should embody. He is kind, compassionate, and a wonderful friend to all. He goes out of his way to make sure everyone around him is okay. He seeks out friends who don't have someone to play with. He is inclusive and accepting. He is an amazing Glover Kid. – Mr. Powers, Mrs. McDavitt, and Ms. Hammond
