You Are Invited to Framingham State's 11th Annual College Readiness: What Every Parent Should Know

Thursday, October 17, 2019 from 7 to 9 pm
McCarthy Center Campus Forum
Framingham State University

Want to know:

- ▶ How to better prepare your child academically for the freshman year?
- ▶ What difficulties students face as college freshmen?
- ▶ What work habits college faculty expect from college freshmen?

Attend this free information session for parents on how to get their children college and work ready (Hint: good grades are not good enough). Parents of middle school and early high school-age children are especially encouraged to attend.

Topics to be addressed include the following:

- ▶ Expectations and assumptions of college faculty
- ▶ Work/study habits and organizational skills: high school vs. college
- ▶ Why getting good grades now is not a guarantee for future success
- ▶ Academic accommodations: K-12 vs. college

This event is being sponsored by the Offices of Enrollment and Student Development, Continuing Education, and the Division of Inclusive Excellence.
