- Kids notice a lot about the world – including race, ethnicity, inequity and injustice. They sense that these things matter, and they have questions many educators are not prepared to answer.
- This interactive workshop will explore the barriers that prevent adults from talking about race and racism with kids, examine the social science of race awareness in children, and identify strategies to start the conversation with kids about the complexities of race, racism, and racial differences.
- You can learn more on the Wee the People website-<https://www.weethepeopleboston.org/parents-educators>

Who: This session is for adults. Free childcare is provided. All MPS elementary school parent/guardians are welcome to attend.

Next Step: Please RSVP if you are able. Although the RSVP if not required to attend it would help us plan ahead for lights refreshments to be served.
